Health report: County fit for Ky.

Rankings aren't much different from state scores, previous years

BY NICK TABOR NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

A county-by-county survey of the nation's health statistics hit the Internet on Tuesday. From perspective, Christian County's statistics are jarring. The county scored significantly below the national benchmark in premature death rates. people in poor or fair health, smoking, obesity, physical inactivity, excessive drinking, deaths in vehicle wrecks, sexually-transmitted infections, teen births, preventable hospital stays, unemployment, children living in poverty, children in single-parent homes, inadequate social support, violent crime rates, limited access to healthy food, and prevalence of fast food restaurants.

But from another perspective, this report brings no surprises at all; it only shows Christian County is deeply situated in its time and place. Comparing the new data with a 2007 statewide study shows Christian County's health has not changed much in the last five years.

QuickInfo: Healthy Study Results

A study that ranked the health of residents by counties found that Christian County generally scored far below the national average in most categories. When you look at the results, however, and compare them to previous studies and to state averages, the low rankings aren't all that surprising. Below are the county's and state's scores along with the national average in a handful of categories covered in the survey.

HPD officers claim OG fire chief drove through scene of car wreck

BY DAVID SNOW FOR THE NEW ERA

Oak Grove Volunteer Fire Department Chief Greg Bequette was cited Wednesday for allegedly ignoring directions given to him by Hopkinsville police officers working the scene of a car wreck.

HPD officers had responded to an injury accident on Pembroke Road at the Pennyrile Parkway overpass when Bequette, traveling eastbound on Pembroke Road, came upon the crash.

According to the police report, officers had noticed nails in the roadway that fell out of one of the vehicles involved in the wreck. To prevent cars from driving over the nails, officers blocked the road with a stationary po- Bequette

THAT'S THE TICKET!

WHO WE ARE: Roshik Merritt, 33, Hopkinsville

Roshik Merritt lives in Hopkinsville, but she works at the Sam's Club in Clarksville.

While a roughly 30-mile daily commute could be a strain for some people, Merritt says it's not a big deal for her at all.

"Nah, it's not too far if you drive the way I do," Merritt said as her mother stood beside her and nodded.

"It doesn't take me verv long at all to get there," Merritt added, admitting that's she's gotten a ticket or two for her lead foot, a fact confirmed by the look on her mother's face.

Merritt, who doesn't have any children of her own, said her favorite thing to do away from work is spend time with her family, including aunts and uncles.

That's one reason Merritt is "pretty excited" to see the recent snap of great weather. She said the nice weather makes grilling out and spending time with her family much

"That's what we mostly do," she said.

Records: 4 involved in Ohio woman's dismemberment

URBANA, Ohio (AP)— Court documents show people were involved in the dismembering of a western Ohio woman found dead last week in her bathtub. The records say Jessica Sacco's boyfriend, Matthew Puccio, stabbed her torso with a knife and suffocated her with a plastic bag in their Urbana home.

Puccio also is accused of cutting off Sacco's legs and one arm. Investigators say an Urbana couple and a man from Fenton, Mich., helped.

The records say the Michigan man and his wife helped transport body parts for dumping in southwest Ohio and Kentucky. Police say she was killed around March Puccio is charged with murder. The others face various other charges. All are jailed on bond.

The suspects' attorneys either haven't returned calls or say they can't immediately comment.

2 missing Fla. men get new attention

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Felipe Santos, an illegal immigrant from Mexico, and Terrance Williams, a black man, had little in common until about eight years ago. That was when they disappeared three months apart in the Naples area, both of them right after crossing paths with sheriff's Deputy Steven Calkins.

Investigations by local, state and federal authorities went nowhere. Calkins. who is white, denied doing anything more than dropping off the young men at different convenience stores. He was never charged but was fired after he stopped cooperating with investigators. The men's families were left to wonder and grieve after public interest faded. Now their disappearance is back in the spotlight, in part because Hollywood star Tyler Perry and civil rights activists are using the Trayvon Martin case to draw attention to what they see as a string of injustices and incomplete investigations involving minorities.

"They were never arrested, never brought to jail," Perry wrote Sunday on Tylerperry.com. "They were put into the back of Deputy Calkins' car and never heard from again. And to this day Deputy Steve Calkins is a free man. I guess it's time to march in Naples now."

Santos, who did farm work and construction, was 23 when he vanished in October 2003. He had been driving with his brothers to work when he got into a fender bender. He didn't have registration or insurance, and Calkins arrested him, put him in the back of his patrol car and drove away.

When his brothers went to the jail to bail him out, he wasn't there.

Later, Calkins told investigators that because Santos was so cooperative, he decided not to arrest him and instead dropped him off at a store.

Williams, was 27 and had moved to Naples from Chattanooga, Tenn., to be closer to his mother after trouble with the law. His white Cadillac broke down in January 2004. Calkins spotted it and called in to the Collier County Sheriff's Office to run the vehicle number and have the car towed. In the recorded conversation, Calkins and the dispatcher both talked in exaggerated black di-

Later, Calkins told investigators that Williams asked him for a ride to a store and he let him off there. Police reports said Williams was last spotted by witnesses near a cemetery.

Don Hunter, the Collier County sheriff at the time, said Calkins' patrol car was tested for blood and signs of a struggle, but nothing was found. A tracking device was put on Calkins' car in case he had dumped their bodies and went back to the scene, Hunter said, but again nothing turned up.

The former sheriff noted that both men would have had some reason to disappear — Santos was in the country illegally, and Williams was due back in court in Tennessee, where he was facing jail time for failure to pay child sup-

Hunter eventually fired Calkins, saying that the deputy became uncooperative and that one of the three polygraph tests he took indicated some deception.

A working phone number for Calkins couldn't be found. In a 2006 interview with the Naples Daily News, he called his involvement in the two cases "coincidence extreme," and he told other news organizations that he didn't know anything about the disappearances.

Afghan bomb kills 3 NATO troops, including 2 US soldiers

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — A suicide bomber blew himself up at a park Wednesday in northern Afghanistan, killing at least 10 people, including two U.S. soldiers, officials said, the latest in a string of attacks as spring fighting season gets under way.

Afghan and NATO security forces have frequently been targeted in the surge of violence as militants fight to assert their power and undermine U.S. efforts to try to build up the Afghan military and leave combat responsibility to local forces by the end of 2014.

The bomber was riding a motorcycle when he detonated his explosives at the gate of the park in Maimanah, the capital of Faryab province, police spokesman Lal Mohammad Ahmad Zai said. It was not clear what was targeted, but he said four of those killed were po-Associated Press video footage of the scene of the attack showed what appear to be dead Afghan civilians, police and foreign troops at the explosion site. Body parts were strewn around the gate and on the ground and blood was spattered everywhere.

In Kabul, NATO said three of its service members were killed in a bombing Wednesday in northern Afghanistan. It provided no other details about the attack or the nationalities of the three.

A senior U.S. defense official confirmed that two of them were Americans who were killed in the Faryab bombing but he had no information on the third slain NATO service member. He spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to release the information for the record.

Germany and Norway, who have troops in the region, said none of their soldiers were involved. Germany commands alliance operations in the area. There are troops of various nationalities serving there, most at a Norwegian base that houses a Provincial Reconstruction Team in Maimahan. The joint international military-civilian units work on development and reconstruc-Afghan officials said at least six Afghans, including four police officers, also were killed in the attack.

Faryab is relatively calm, but it is considered to be a stronghold of the Islamic Movement of Uzbekistan, or IMU, an al-Qaida affiliated group that has been most active in the northern provinces of Afghanistan.

On March 26, a joint Afghan and coalition force killed the group's leader in Afghanistan Makhdum Nusrat and detained two other insurgents. The coalition said Nusrat had been leading attacks against Afghan and coalition troops in the north for the past eight months and had been plotting the assassination of a member of parliament in Kabul.

The IMU was formed in 1991, originally aiming to set up an Islamic state Uzbekistan, which borders Afghanistan. Later it expanded its goal to seeking an Islamic state across Cen-

Militants also have stepped up their attacks against international and Afghan troops nationwide in recent weeks. Nine Afghan policemen were killed and 11 abducted across the nation in the past three days.

Fighting in Afghanistan usually wanes during the winter months as Taliban fighters take a break because of winter weather, only to surge in the spring. Heavy snow covers many of the mountain passes used by the Taliban and other insurgent fighters to cross mainly into eastern Afghanistan from safe havens in neighboring Pakistan.

Anger against foreign forces also has risen following a series of missteps, including the inadvertent burning of copies of the Muslim holy book and other religious materials in February and the massacre of 17 Afghan civilians allegedly by a rogue U.S. soldier. Foreign troops also have found themselves increasingly targeted. There were conflicting accounts on the number of dead in Wednesday's attack, ranging from at least six to at least Zai said four of those killed were police officers and six were civilians, including two women and two children. The director of Maimanah hospital,

Abdul Ali Aleem, said six who died and 26 who were wounded in the suicide bombing were brought to his hospital. Abdul Satar Barez, the deputy governor of Faryab, said the suicide attack occurred just before noon. He said it took place at a park and that foreign troops were involved. So far this year, 97 NATO service members have been killed in Afghanistan, including at least 54 Americans. Germany and Norway, who have troops in the region, said that none of their soldiers were involved. Germany commands alliance operations in the Abdul Satar Barez, deputy governor of Faryab, said the attack occurred about 10:30 a.m. near a park in downtown Maimanah.

PACS offers help with tax forms

BY DAVID SNOW FOR THE NEW FRA

The deadline to mail completed income ax forms to the Internal Revenue Service this year is April 17, but even though there is an extended deadline, many people will put off filling until the last minute.

For anyone who needs help with their personal income taxes, volunteers at Pennyrile Allied Community Services are ready. They have been taking reservations since February, and there are still a few

"The program that we run under is a grant from the Internal Revenue Service," said Garrott Lyons, the Christian County coordinator for PACS. "The program we operate under is called Tax Counseling for the Elderly. The goal of that is to provide free tax preparation services to seniors age 60 and over. They would like for 50 to 60 percent of the tax preparation services to be for the people in that age group. "We also do this for pretty much anybody. We target people with disabilities, people with low income — we can't turn away anybody."

The individuals who help prepare the income tax forms are usually retired people who regularly volunteer at PACS. They go through seven to 10 days of training in January, primarily to learn how to use the tax-preparation software.

Volunteers must pass a test and go through a confidentiality session. The organization begins taking appointments in February. They usually do taxes from 8 a.m. to about 1:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Lyons said they have had to expand on the days to accommodate the need for tax help.

There are a few restrictions.

"We don't do business taxes," Lyons said. "We also don't do people who have rental property because you get into all of the appreciation schedules, and it really gets highly technical.

"We can do retired military, but we can't do active-duty military. ... There is a service through the judge advocate general's office at Fort Campbell where military personnel can get their taxes done for Volunteers are paid $15 a day. All forms are filed electronically. Lyons said that each year, 475 tax returns are done out of the PACS office in Hopkinsville.

With the unseasonably mild late winter, the 2012 storm season began early, as March roared in like a lion following severe storms on Feb. 29.

The best way to face storms is to be prepared for them through planning and using the media to know when a storm is headed your way.

"After last year, with the storms in Joplin, Mo., and Tuscaloosa, Ala., more people here are actually paying more attention," said Randy Graham, the director of the Christian County Manage-Emergency ment Agency.

County and a number of surrounding counties tornado opened havens.

"We opened five after the event last February, in addition to last year, we opened five," Graham said. "Last year, we sheltered about 350 to 400 people.'

The storm shelters are around the located county. Shelter from severe storms and tornadoes can be found at the Oak Grove Community Center, Second Baptist Church of Hopkinsville, Crofton City Hall, Pembroke Baptist Church and the Lackey Municipal Building.

Graham said that the best ways that people can be safe when storms strike is to pay attention to the weather.

Minimal changes

The University of Wisconsin's Population Health Institute and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation released the survey on Tuesday. It is a compilation of mostly public data: its sources include the National Center for Health Statistics, the Center for Disease Control and the FBI.

The study's overall scores factor in five criteria: the rate of people dying before age 75, the number of people in poor or fair health, the numbers of days people report being in poor physical health, the days they report of poor mental health, and the number of infants with low birthweights.

Some of Christian County's most extreme divergences from the state and national averages occur in areas relating to sexual health. It reported sexually-transmitted infections at a rate of 421, compared to the state average of 311 and the national benchmark of 84.

It reported a teen birth rate of 83, whereas the state's average is 52 and the national benchmark is 22.

Roughly 24 percent of Christian County's population is in poor or fair health, according to the data. Compare this to 22 percent of Kentucky's population and the national benchmark of 10 per-

Eighteen percent of the county's residents lacked health insurance, compared to 17 percent of Kentucky residents and a national benchmark of 11 percent.

In the Kentucky Institute of Medicine's

2007 study, Christian County's numbers were similar to the current numbers in many major areas, including obesity, physical inactivity, premature deaths and the number of uninsured residents. The percentage of adult smokers increased from 20 percent to 28 percent over five years.

Todd and Trigg

Todd County showed improvement this past year in its mortality rate, which decreased by about 16 percent.

Its percentage of uninsured adults dropped from 27 last year to 22 this year. Most of Todd's statistics stayed steady:

obesity, smoking, those in poor or fair health. The rate of sexually transmitted infections increased from 214 to 216; the teen birth rate went from 43 last year to 42 this year.

But its improvements sufficed to boost it

By contrast, Trigg's mortality rate increased by about 15 percent. Its rate of sexually transmitted infec-

Improving infrastructure

Mark Pyle, director of the Christian County Health Department, said Kentucky's poor health statistics — including Christian County's — have actually persisted for about 20 years, not just five. Millions of dollars spent on preventive health care have not boosted the statistics significantly, he said.

'Our society wants to do whatever they want, eat whatever they want whenever they want until they get sick and then they want a pill to cure them immediately so they can get back to whatever they want to do," Pyle wrote in an email to the New Era. "We all know that we need to eat right and get regular exercise.'

Still, to ensure residents truly have a choice to live more healthy lives, this county needs better infrastructure, Pyle said, especially public education on health issues and free access to exercise opportunities. To this end, the health department will support the creation of hiking trails and public transportation, as well as a public smoking ban, Pyle

Pyle has said the department will release its comprehensive community health assessment later this year.

Man pleads guilty to environmental charges

GLASGOW, Ky. (AP) — A former manager at a southern Kentucky aluminum production plant has pleaded guilty in federal court to environmental charges.

The Glasgow Daily Times reports Daniel Evanoff, who managed the J.L. French plant in Glasgow from 2007 to 2009, entered the plea on Tuesday. The newspaper cites court records in reporting that he pleaded guilty to defrauding the federal government and violating the Clean Air Act by tampering with a required monitoring device.

An indictment last year charged that Evanoff and other coconspirators agreed to create false records concealing that the plant exceeded production and air emissions limits. The indictment said Evanoff directed others to install a temperature resistor on air pollution control equipment to create a false temperature reading.

Defense Attorney Jack Faust told Christian Circuit Court Judge Andrew Self that an ankle monitor and Fort Campbell supervision would serve as "sufficient restraints.'

Commonwealth Attorney Lynn Pryor opposed Morris' release and said that just because he was being released to the Army did not mean he would be supervised adequately while on post. Self asked Pryor if she thought Morris was a flight risk. "I think anyone charged with murder is a flight risk," Pryor said.

While on release, Morris will be given regular employment at Fort Campbell and is required to show up for work every day. He will stay in a barrack set up for occasions like this.

Pryor argued that she was concerned with the safety of Morris' other children because there have been previous investigations of abuse.

About three weeks before he was arrested, Morris brought his daughter, Alayna Adair, into Gateway Medical Center in Clarksville, Tenn., to have her arm examined. Her left elbow was swollen and bruised, according to state that Adair's arm was already broken when he picked her up from her mother's house three days earlier. He then said he didn't know how it happened. Later, Morris told a cabinet member that Adair injured herself on a slip-and-slide. On July 2, Oak Grove police were called to Morris home on Pembroke-Oak Grove Road. When they arrived, the 3-year-old Adair unconscious and barely breathing, police said. Morris told police that the child hit her head after falling in a bathtub. An autopsy showed that she died from blunt force trauma to the head.

Morris was arrested later that month in Texas.

The social worker who handled the broken arm report, Donna M. Currey, retired from the cabinet after she received a letter saying her managers planned to fire her. The letter pointed out many areas in which the cabinet felt Currey had mishandled the report.

As part of his release, Morris cannot have contact with any children, including his.

Self told Morris that if he broke any of the conditions of his release, "I will yank you back in just immediately." Morris nodded that he understood.

department $100 to travel to the site of an alarm and $100 in other personnel and equipment

The fee levied against the owner of an alarm that goes off without need is $5 for the first false alarm. That fee doubles with each subsequent false alarm within a calendar month. Residents and businesses could be fined up to $500 for the eighth false alarm and every other false alarm thereafter.

The ordinance requires the police chief or fire chief to serve written notice to the alarm owners to inform them of the fee. Oak Grove Police Chief Les Langdon said he had sent out about 500 notices last week.

"We have so many (false alarms), and it's such an expense to us and the fire department that, that was why (the ordinance) was enacted," he said.

"The only thing that the homeowner or the business owner can do - and I talked to the one at Kickers (Country Club) this morn-– is to contact vour alarm service. If we are called off of it before we get there, it's not considered a false alarm.'

Langdon said most false alarms at businesses are triggered by vendors coming into the business, as was the case at Kickers.

He added that residential false alarms are often triggered by animals inside the home and the sensitivity of the alarm being set too high. Residents coming home for lunch forgetting the alarm is set is another common cause of false

"Most of the time, we find that the problem isn't with the alarm company. It's human error," he said. "It's a costly service, and we're not trying to gouge anybody ... It's a public safety issue."

ELKTON: City council approves bid for community development plan

Craig Morris, regional planning coordinator for PADD, will organize the plan, which will cost Elkton $14,500 to develop. Morris will meet with city department heads and council members over the next few months as he works on the plan.

Camp said the plan will outline the city's future development and hopes to have it ready by the end of 2012. In 2009, the city contracted with the University of Kentucky for a community vision plan. They paid $10,000 in advance for its development.

Camp said the city had very little contact with the university after contracting with them. When the pian was finished, they received opinions from both PADD and Tim Butler, an Elizabethtown attorney and former president of the Kentucky Chapter of the American Planning Association, that they shouldn't adopt it.

Camp said they have tried to contact UK's attorneys several times but have heard nothing back. She wants to recoup the $10,000 the city paid and expects to take legal action against the university. 'It is the citizens' money in Elkton and I don't want to waste it," she said. "We cannot waste it. Money is just too short.'

The council also approved a bid from Raybold Environmental for repairs to an old die-casting building the city owns on Jefferson Street. Camp said that when copper prices went up a few years ago, vandals started pulling copper wire off of the building, releasing asbestos into its interior. Raybold is being paid to remove aspestos irom the building. Their contract bid was $44,800.

The council also agreed to start accepting bids for a project to replace the roof of the Elkton Police Department.

Apply law in meetings for school chief search

Now is a good time for the Christian County Board of Education and its super-intendent search committee to decide how they can provide a transparent process in identifying the school district's next leader. The Kentucky Open Meetings Law is the best place to start.

If the board and committee members review the law and commit to honoring the spirit of open government, the public will better understand the school board's final decision.

OUR OPINION

Let's begin with the most basic tenet of the law. The six-member search committee is a "public agency" as the law defines it, and the committee must meet certain obligations under the law. That means all of its meetings must be announced in advance and all of its meetings must be open to the public. A superintendent search committee might assume that all of its discussions will be conducted behind closed doors, but that's not what the law allows.

Logically, there is only one exemption to the Open Meetings Law for a committee doing this kind of work. That exemption states that a closed session is allowed for "Discussions or hearings which might lead to the appointment, discipline or dismissal of an individual employee ..."

Providing a narrow application for this exemption, the law also states, "This exception shall not be interpreted to permit discussion of general personnel matters in secret."

It's important for the search committee to understand the exemption and what the law says about no closed sessions for general personnel matters. This is one of the most abused sections of the law. The law allows the search committee to discuss specific applicants for superintendent in closed session. The law does not allow the committee to discuss the search itself in closed session. That means it would be illegal for the committee to secretly discuss topics such as the hiring schedule or the qualities sought in a superintendent.

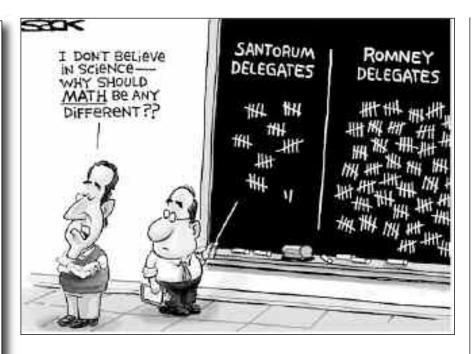

Every time the committee meets, it must do a couple things before it goes into closed session. First it must make a motion to go into closed session and it must state the exception in the law that allows it go into closed session. Then, in general terms, it must explain how the topic they plan to discuss applies to the exception. The committee members must vote to go into closed session.

To be clear, every meeting must begin in open session and the committee must establish why the law allows it to close the meeting to the public. Ideally, at the end of a closed session, the committee should then allow members of the public to return to the meeting room before adjourning the meeting. These steps provide clear bookends to the limited scope of a closed session.

All votes by the committee must occur in open. When the committee is prepared to determine which candidates it will recommend to the school board, that decision should be made in public with a vote.

The school board announced recently that it will have its first meeting with the committee on May 18. We look forward to hearing the discussions in an open session.

Kentucky New Era editorials are the consensus opinion of the editorial board, which meets every week and includes Publisher Taylor W. Hayes, Opinion Editor Jennifer P. Brown and Editor Eli Pace.

Sweet success for art council's first Jelly Bean Jog in Hoptown

The Editor, New Era,

Thank you to everyone who helped to make the first Pennyroyal Arts Council Jelly Bean Jog such a huge success. We had well over 200 participants representing age 1 to senior citizens, and a diverse group of runners. It was a great day not only for the arts council but for our entire community. We could not have ordered better weather. Whether you were a runner, jogger, walker, bicyclist, roller bladder, baby in a stroller, or a doggie ... we sincerely appreciate your participation. We raised a great deal of money to benefit the Pennyroyal Arts Council.

This was a new fundraising event for the Arts Council. Jill Atkins, our event chair, and others on the arts council board, deserve much praise for the success for the success. We would like to say thank you to many people and groups that helped: Bikes & Moore, Commonwealth Counseling (A. Paige Mullins-Couch), The Copper Still, Culligan Water, Haddock's Grocery, Hopkinsville Water Environment Authority, J. Schrecker Jewelry, Jennie Stuart Medical Center, Landrum Spine and Sport Chiropractic, Max-Fuel Express, and attorney Richard Boling. We could not have done this without the support of Hopkinsville police. The Little River Cycling Club assisted the police at the major intersections.

Thanks also to WHVO/WKDZ for fervently promoting the event and for doing a live remote on Saturday morning.

We greatly appreciate the coverage in the Kentucky New Era — the articles leading up to the event and the article in the Monday morning edition. We also appreciate the positive comments in last Thursday's opinion section. I do want to address the comment regarding the route used Saturday morning. Since this was our first time sponsoring this event, we felt it best to use an established route. We will definitely look at an alternate route next year; however, we heard so many positive comments from the participants about the route used Saturday, and it might not be wise to change. The comments we heard most were about how beautiful our city is during the spring and how the route really highlighted some of the beautiful historic areas of Hopkinsville.

Yes, we plan to do this again next year!

The Pennyroyal Arts Council is proud to be a part such a wonderful community and has plans for another great series of events at the Alhambra for the 2012-13 season. Season tickets and single event tickets will be available at the council offices at the L&N Depot or online at our website www. pennyroyalarts.org

Ban track race-day drugs

Horse racing is and always will be a dangerous sport.

Human and equine athletes compete at high speed in crowded fields relying on muscle, bone and split-second judgment to keep them safe.

There are factors that affect that risk, including the integrity of owners, trainers, veterinarians and racing officials.

The challenge horse racing faces is convincing the public that it's doing everything possible to reduce the risk.

It's a challenge the sport simply has not met.

The only realistic solution is to embrace the efforts of Kentucky Rep. Ed Whitfield and New Mexico Sen. Tom Udall to amend the Interstate Horseracing Act of 1978 to prohibit administering performance-enhancing drugs on race days to horses in simulcast races. Hundreds of people in the industry have signed a letter advocating federal oversight.

Performance-enhancing drugs are often used to mask pain so that a sore horse will still run hard. As most human athletes know, pain is a message that, if ignored, can lead to serious injury. In horses, serious injuries are often fatal.

Worse, if a breakdown happens during a race, the horse, rider and the competitors are endangered. ...

As for serious fans, handicappers, they are drawn to the challenge of sifting through reams of facts and figures on past performances to envision how the next race will play out. This all falls apart if a horse runs well because it's been given a megadose of a painkiller. ...

Some animal rights activists will probably never accept the inherent risk of horse racing as anything other than cruelty. Racing fans will always have a twinge of fear when the gates open but will go on loving the sport.

In between, there are millions of people who might be fans if they could only believe that some authority is watching out for the safety of horse and rider in every race in every state.

Today is Thursday, April 5, the 96th day of 2012. There are 270 days left in the year.

On this date: In 1614, Pocahontas, daughter of the leader of the Powhatan tribe, married English colonist John Rolfe in Virginia. (A convert to Christianity, she went by the name Lady Rebecca.)

In 1621, the Mayflower sailed from Plymouth Colony in present-day Massachusetts on a monthlong return trip to England.

In 1887, in Tuscumbia, Ala., Anne Sullivan achieved a breakthrough as her blind and deaf pupil, Helen Keller, learned the meaning of the word "water" as spelled out in the Manual Alphabet.

In 1895, Oscar Wilde lost his criminal libel case against the Marquess of Queensberry, who'd accused the writer of homosexual practices.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed an executive order creating the Civilian Conservation Corps and naming its director, Robert Fechner.

In 1951, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were sentenced to death following their conviction in

New York on charges of conspiring to commit espionage for the Soviet Union.

In 1964, Army General Douglas MacArthur died in Washington at age 84.

In 1976, reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes died in Houston at age 70.

Advance cure in healthcare

he debate isn't new, but as the country awaits the U.S. Supreme Court's decision on the constitutionality of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, commonly called Obamacare, suppose the conversation switched from a health care system devoted primarily to caring for the sick to one that gives top priority to finding cures for disease? A healthier public would sharply reduce expenses associated with catastrophic illness.

There is also the issue of prevention so that while cures are pursued through research, people might order their lives in ways that give them the best chance of avoiding sickness altogether.

A useful starting point is a paper published in 2009 by Partnership for Prevention (www.prevent.org), "A nonpartisan organization of business, nonprofit and government leaders working to make evidence-based disease prevention and health promotion a national priority." The paper was titled "The Economic Argument for Disease Prevention: Distinguishing Between Value and Savings."

The authors — three doctors and an executive consultant with an MBA — write, "There are three kinds of prevention. Primary prevention can be accomplished by modifying unhealthy behaviors (e.g., smoking, physical inactivity), which cause many diseases and account for 38 percent of all deaths in the United States, administering immunizations to prevent infectious diseases, and reducing exposure to harmful environmental factors. Secondary prevention can reduce the severity of diseases, such as cancer and heart disease, through screening programs that detect the diseases or their risk factors at early stages, before they become symptomatic or disabling. Tertiary prevention — the effort to avoid or defer the complications of diseases after they have developed — is the current focus of medical care"

medical care."
That focus on tertiary prevention is the driving force behind rising health care costs.

As baby boomers age, the cost of treating the rising number of diseases and common illnesses attributable to aging will increase. Finding cures is the most logical approach to keeping health care costs in check.

Take Alzheimer's disease. Because of medical advances, more people are living longer, and more will likely contract this slow progressing, eventually fatal disease. According to the Alzheimer's Association (www.alz.org), "Medicare and Medicaid will spend an estimated $140 billion in 2012 on people with Alzheimer's and other dementias." Worse, it says, "Caring for people with Alzheimer's disease will cost all payers — Medicare, Medicaid, individuals, private insurance and HMOs — $20 trillion (in today's dollars) over the next 40 years.

The overwhelming majority of that will be spending by Medicare and Medicaid."
It would cost far less if we found a cure for Alzheimer's.

The three leading causes of death in America remain what they have been for some time. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, they are: heart disease, cancer and chronic lower respiratory diseases.

What is needed is political leadership, not unlike John F. Kennedy's vision of putting a man on the moon by the end of the 1960s. If the forces of technology can be marshaled to achieve a major task in space, why can't medical and political forces, working together and without the polarization that divides Washington, find cures for diseases here on Earth? Disease does not discriminate. Democrats and Republicans get sick. Where is the downside to cooperating to find medical cures?

Especially if the Supreme Court overturns part, or all, of Obamacare — but even if it doesn't — finding cures to diseases that kill is a worthy objective that will produce dividends for millennia to come and contribute to human happiness. It will also substantially reduce the federal deficit and national debt.

It is rare when an issue has no political negatives attached to it and finding cures for diseases is one of them. Working together might even improve the political health of Washington, which, according to opinion polls, is in critical condition.

Julia Child

Food author and television chef (1912-2004)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mitt Romney unleashed a strong attack on President Barack Obama's truthfulness Wednesday, accusing him of running a "hide-and-seek" re-election campaign designed to distract voters from his first-term record while denying them information about his plans for a second. Addressing an audience of newspaper editors and publishers, Romney said Obama's recent remarks to President Russian Medvedev on a second-term arms reduction treaty had called "his candor into question." Romney, the likely GOP opponent for Obama in November, also accused the president of undergoing "a series of election-year conversions" on taxes, government regulation and energy production.

"He does not want to share his real plans before the election, either with the public or with the press," Romney said. "By flexibility, he means that what the American public doesn't know won't hurt him. He is intent on hiding. You and I will have to do the seeking.

Romney himself has been sharply criticized by Rick Santorum and other Republican rivals for changing his own positions on issues ranging from abortion to climate control as part of an attempt to win the backing of conservative primary voters. Earlier this year, he reversed course on the minimum wage to bring his stance in line with party orthodoxy, saying he no longer believes it should rise along with infla-

Romney spoke to the Newspaper Association of America and the American Society of Newspaper Editors as the Republican nominee-inwaiting, his standing confirmed by three primary victories Tuesday night in Wisconsin, Maryland and Washington, D.C.

The former Massachusetts governor holds a commanding lead in delegates to the Republican National Convention and is on a pace to clinch the party's top prize by the end of the primary season in June.

Responding to a question, he declined to say if he would support proposed legislation to protect confidential sources that journalists often rely on.

Republican presidential candidate, former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney speaks Wednesday at the Newspapers Association of America/ American Society of News Editors luncheon gathering in Washington.

"Do I see a role for confidential sources? Yes. Do I ever see a time when a confidential source would have to be revealed? Yeah, I can see that, too," he said.

And while he joked about sharing the rigors of campaign travel with reporters, he also took a mild swipe at some of the practices they employ. "Frankly, in some of the new media, I find myself missing the presence of editors who exercise quality control. I miss the days of two or more sources for a story — when at least one source was actually named," he

The bulk of Romney's remarks amounted to a rebuttal of sorts to Obama, who spoke from the same stage on Tuesday to the annual meeting of The Associated Press. The president said a newly drafted Republican budget in Congress represented a radical vision. "It is a prescription for decline."

Romney disagreed. He said that instead of laying out plans for a second term, Obama "railed against arguments no one is making - and criticized policies no one is proposing. It's one of his favorite strategies, setting up straw men to distract from his record."

The Republican highlighted two areas in which he said Obama has been particularly opaque about his plans, one involving presidential comments made recently to Medvedev and the other relating to the future of the government's largest benefit programs, Social Security and Medicare.

Obama told Medvedev in a remark picked up on a microphone that he would have more flexibility to negotiate an arms treaty with Russia after the U.S. election. White House aides have since said it was a statement of the obvious.

"What exactly does President Obama intend to do differently once he is no longer accountable to the voters?" he asked. "With all the challenges the nation faces, this is not the time for President Obama's hide-

Is this the end of the gold rush?

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold, which has climbed for years like a blood pressure reading for anxious investors, plunged Wednesday to its lowest level in three months.

Gold fell almost $58 to $1,614 per ounce. It has declined 15 percent since September, when it hit a peak of $1,907. It had more than doubled from the financial crisis three years earlier.

The decline Wednesday came on an ugly day in the stock market. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 125 points — a day that last year probably would have caused fearful investors to buy gold as a protective investment.

"It's difficult to forecast, but I think the gold bull market is over," said Cetin Ciner, a professor of finance at the University of North Carolina-Wilmington. He likened the surge in gold to dot-com stocks before they collapsed.

Some investors buy gold as a hedge against inflation, and minutes from a Federal Reserve meeting that came out Tuesday afternoon suggested that the central bank believes inflation is under control.

Gold's attraction as an asset of refuge during crises also seems to have diminished. The economy has picked up, and worstcase scenarios in the United States and Europe

"Fear has been gold's best friend, and so to the extent that fear is dissipating, gold should fall," said Jim Paulsen, chief investment strategist at Wells Capital Management. "We might look back at these Fed minutes as the line in the sand.

Gold has been hit in recent weeks by a strike by gold sellers in India, the world's largest buyer of physical gold. Another bearish sign was a surge Wednesday in the dollar, which tends to rise when gold falls.

Gold fetched only $300 to $400 an ounce during the 1990s but climbed steadily last decade. It took off in late 2008, when prices for stocks and corporate bonds plunged, wiping out years of savings and even money market funds looked suspect. Investors bid up prices for the safest of assets, like U.S. Treasury bonds. Others turned to gold.

"During our bout with Armageddon, people ran to it for safety," said Abraham Bailin, a commodity analyst at Morningstar. "It might sound silly now, but that's where it started.'

Demand for gold surged as the Federal Reserve bought bonds to push down borrowing costs and stimulate the economy, a move known as quantitative eas-

The Fed's efforts to pump money into the banking system and avert a deep recession led to fears of runaway inflation, a concern shared by both the tea party and big-shot investors.

Buying gold soon became a political statement. For those who didn't trust financial institutions or were wary of the government, it was the investment of choice. The television personality Glenn Beck advised viewers to stock up on gold bars.

"Gold became a symbol of your political leanings," Bailin said. "It became a way to speculate on the solvency of the economy.'

Or perhaps to speculate that the price would continue to rise, whatever the reason. Some analysts, like Ciner and Wells Fargo's Paulsen, said that as the price climbed ever higher, everyday investors may have been trying to catch

Warm and fuzzy T. rex? New evidence surprises

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The discovery of a giant meat-eating dinosaur sporting a downy coat has some scientists reimagining the look of Tyrannosaurus rex.

With a killer jaw and sharp claws, T. rex has long been depicted in movies and popular culture as having scaly skin. But the discovery of an earlier relative suggests the king of dinosaurs may have had a softer

The evidence comes from the unearthing of a new tyrannosaur species in northeastern China that lived 60 million years before T. rex. The fossil record preserved remains of fluffy down, making it the largest feathered dinosaur ever found.

If a T. rex relative had feathers, why not T. rex? Scientists said the evidence is trending in that direction. 'People need to start changing their image of T. rex," said Luis Chiappe, director of the Dinosaur Institute at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County, who was not part of the discovery team.

Much smaller dinosaurs with primitive feathers have been excavated in recent years, but this is the first direct sign of a huge, shaggy dinosaur. Scientists have long debated whether gigantic dinosaurs lost their feathers the bigger they got or were just not as extensively covered.

Colonel duo signs football letters

Christian County's Lucas Crawley (15) is tackled by a pair of Fort Campbell defenders during a game last season at the Stadium of Champions.

NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The 2011 Christian County High School football team came one win shy of being the only squad in program history to complete an undefeated regular season.

A large portion of the Colonels' success last year, which included a 10-2 final record and a firstround playoff win, was due to their multitude of Matlock

Two of those weapons announced the next phases of their respective lives Wednesday.

During a ceremony inside the school cafeteria, seniors Dayshaun Matlock and Lucas Crawley signed national letters of intent to continue their playing careers at the college level. Matlock signed with Murray State University, while Crawley committed to Olivet Nazarene University, a NAIA school in Bourbonnais, Ill.

"They're not only good football players, but they're good kids and good students, and that's what we talk about,' Christian County head football coach and Athletic Director Steve Lovelace said of the pair. "During the season, Luke had a 4.1 GPA. Dayshaun had over a 3.0. So it's really good to see that. I'm proud that two more get an opportunity to go on to the next level.'

While the senior duo signed together, Matlock and Crawley took very different paths to Wednesday afternoon.

Matlock was a four-year player for the Colonels. The 5foot-10, 195-pound senior spent most of his career on the defensive side of the ball as a linebacker. But last season, Matlock ventured over to

Wildcats live up to hype

NEW ORLEANS (AP) unning joke all season was that Kentucky was good enough to beat some NBA teams. Say, maybe the Toronto Raptors.

Farfetched? Probably. But with that stable of pros-in-waiting, one thing seemed certain: The Wildcats were the team to beat in college basketball.

Capping a season that had a feeling of inevitability, Kentucky finished with a flourish, beating Kansas 67-59 in the NCAA championship game Monday night.

OK, so maybe it was the last time we'll see many of those future millionaires in blue and white. At least they'll go out as heroes after bringing home an eighth national championship to Big Blue and giving John Calipari the one missing piece to his resume.

"We were the best team," Calipari said. "I wanted this to be one for the ages.' Calipari has had a knack for luring the nation's best recruits to Lexington, never worrying about whether they'd stick around.

This year's bouncy-legged bunch was impressive even by his

Led by everybody's player of the year Anthony Davis, these fasttracked Wildcats raced past nearly everyone who got in their way.

Davis, Michael Kidd-Gilchrist, Doron Lamb, Darius Miller, Terrence Jones, Marquis Teague – Coach Cal had a team of ringers and he, along with everyone else, knew it. Who's No. 2 seemed to be the only question left.

Kentucky lost just twice during the season: on a buzzer-beater by Indiana and to Vanderbilt in the SEC tournament in New Orleans, where Commodores big man Festus Ezeli pushed the Wildcats around.

The Vandy loss seemed to serve the Wildcats well, giving them a not-so-subtle reminder they still have to play, that this was no divine-right coronation.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The seven shots Rory McIlroy took on the 10th hole last year at the Masters remain a blur. So was the rest of his final round at Augusta National, where the 22-year-old from Northern Ireland made the wrong kind of history. He started with a four-shot lead.

He finished 10 shots behind after an 80, the highest closing round by a 54-hole leader in 56 years.

If nothing else, it was a reminder how tenuous a lead can be in the final round.

Especially at the Masters.

"It's a course that makes you really nervous," Geoff Ogilvy said.

There is an art to playing Augusta, which explains why nearly 40 percent of the Masters have been won by eight players. For those seeking their first green jacket, let alone their first major, finishing it off can be a challenge.

Greg Norman lost a record six-shot lead in 1996. Ed Sneed had a five-shot lead in 1979, and was still three shots clear with

That highlights just a few of the items on Kentucky's laundry list of accomplishments this season, one of the greatest in the history of college basketball.

So what's next for head coach John Calipari and the Wildcats? How about doing it all again next year?

Calipari finally captured his first national title. Now, he said he wants an undefeated season, another national championship and maybe even seven players picked in the first round of the draft. Why not?

Calipari is 102 14 in three seasons at Kentucky. The 53-year-old coaching veteran has Wildcat fans reminiscing about KEITH the days of The JENKINS Unforgettables in 1992, The Untouchables in 1996 and The Unbelievables in 1997. Well, Big Blue Nation, it's time to come up with some more nicknames, and fast. Calipari, who said Wednesday he has no interest in another stint in the NBA, will likely watch another talented group of players make an early exit to the professional ranks, including record-setting freshman forward Anthony Davis, the National Player of the Year.

Following Monday night's national championship win, Calipari said he'll hit the recruiting trail Friday to make sure he has enough players to make up for the upcoming mass exodus that is expected to occur in the coming weeks.

So just as you were getting to know this group of Wildcats, and bowing to the Brow, there will be another batch coming in next year that will be just as, if not more impressive.

So far, Calipari has three signatures on national letters of intent — one from 6-foot-10, 215-pound center Willie Couley, another from 6-foot-5, 181-pound shooting guard and McDonald's All-American Archie Goodwin, and a third from 6-foot-7, 215pound small forward Alex Poythress, another McDonald's All-American from Clarksville (Tenn.) Northeast.

But in addition to those three premier prospects, five others, like every single Kentucky fan, are wafting eagerly to see how many current Wildcats declare for the NBA draft.

Center Nerlens Noel (Everett, Mass.), small forward Shabazz Muhammad (Las Vegas), power forward Anthony Bennett (Ontario, Canada), power forward Amile Jefferson (Philadelphia), center Tony Parker (Lithonia, Ga.) and small forward Devonta Pollard (De Kalb, Miss.) are the top senior high school prospects that have yet to commit to a college program. They're all looking toward Lexington. Noel and Muhammad are the top two players in the country.

Noel, who has trimmed his list of college choices to Kentucky, Georgetown and Syracuse, is scheduled to make his decision Wednesday on ESPN. A 6-foot-10, 215-pound shot blocker, Noel would fit nicely into Davis' shoes.

But if you notice, there isn't a point guard on that list of highly touted recruits. What if Marquis Teague, who seemed to improve with each passing minute this season, came back for his sophomore campaign? That would make for another attractive run to the Final Four, which make three straight for Caipari's Wildcats.

Davis, Michael Kidd-Gilchrist, Terrence Jones, Doron Lamb and Darius Miller, the lone senior, are likely moving on. But Teague should stay. His brother, Jeff Teague, played two seasons at Wake Forest. He's now the starting point guard for the Atlanta Hawks. If Teague stays, the Wildcats have another shot at a title run. If he doesn't, heck, they still do.

It was just two seasons ago when Big Blue Nation celebrated becoming the first program to 2,000 wins. If Calipari remains in Lexington long enough and avoids having any more seasons vacated by the NCAA, Wildcat fans may have another reason to celebrate — becoming the program with the most national titles. Kentucky has eight. UCLA leads the way with 11. Watch out, John Wooden. Calipari's Cats are coming. This is Food For Thought, you do the

double in the first inning of the Cardinals' 4-1 win over the Miami Marlins Wednesday night in Miami.

Cards spoil Miami party

The sellout crowd in the Miami Marlins' ballpark cheered the introduction of their starters, who were accompanied by women dressed as Latin showgirls. There was another roar for Muhammad Ali, who delivered the first pitch. Then Kyle Lohse and the World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals went to work, and the place grew quiet. Lohse held Miami hitless until the seventh inning and pitched into the eighth to help the Cardinals win the first game in Mar-Park, Wednesday night. The Marlins' new animated home-run sculpture never budged. It was the fourth inning before they even managed a baserunner, and by the time they scored in the eighth, they trailed 4-0.

The crowd of included newly retired Cardinals manager Tony La Russa, who quietly rooted for his former team from the press box.

He watched Lohse retire the first 10 batters before hitting Emilio Bonifacio with a pitch. The runner was erased when Hanley Ramirez grounded into a double play.

Newcomer Reyes singled for Miami's first hit to start the seventh, and Omar Infante scored the Marlins' run in the eighth on John Buck's double. Lohse went 7 1/3 innings, allowing only two hits and one run. The right-hander led the Cardinals last year in victories and ERA but got the call for opening day only because ace Chris Carpenter is sidelined with nerve irritation that has caused weakness in his pitching shoulder.

David Freese, the World Series MVP, had a two-run single in the first inning to give Lohse the cushion he needed. Freese and Rafael Furcal each had three of the Cardinals' 13 hits. Jason Motte earned the save with a onehit ninth to complete the four-hitter. Things were so bad for new manager Ozzie Guillen's team that Marlins ace Josh Johnson recorded the ballpark's first strikeout – but as a hitter. Johnson allowed 10 hits and three runs in six innings. The 2010 NL ERA leader was pitching for the first time since last May 16, when shoulder inflammation ended his year.

Teams set for openers

BY BEN WALKER AP BASEBALL WRITER

Stephen Strasburg on the mound at Wrigley Field, pink flamingos in center field at Miami. Vin Scully at the microphone, Prince Fielder in Motown. Young and old, fresh and familiar, baseball is set to start all across America. A week after Ichiro Suzuki, Yoenis Cespedes and the rest of Athletics and Mariners began in Tokyo, everyone else gets a turn at opening day. Justin Verlander, Clayton Kershaw and Roy Halladay are warmed up, and so is the weather. From Citi Field to Petco Park, the forecast is perfectly playable — none of those flurries and freezing temperatures that intruded at the start in past years are expected. Seven more games were on the schedule today.

Fielder takes his first swings with the Detroit Tigers when they host the Boston Red Sox and new manager Bobby Valentine. Scully begins his 63rd season in the broadcast booth when the Los Angeles Dodgers, soon to have Magic Johnson's touch, visit San Diego. Strasburg, one of base-ball's faces for the future, starts for the Washington Nationals against the Chicago Cubs. "Opening day — it is an honor and stuff," he said. "But it's not what I play for.

You want to play for the games in October." For now, that stuff is plenty. Especially for fans growing weary of watching their stars get hurt, wrecking preseason predictions and fantasy picks. The DL lineup from spring training could fill out an All-Star team: Chipper Jones will start his farewell tour in trainer's room, along with Chase Utley, Chris Carpenter, Carl Crawford, Michael Pineda and more. Johan Santana, however, is ready to start the opener for the New York Mets today when they host Atlanta. The two-time Cv Young winner was out of the majors last year while recovering from shoulder surgery.

"I'm happy to have the opportunity to start the season from Day One with the team. That's something I was really looking forward to," he said.

Buster Posey and Adam Wainwright are among the other big names returning from major injuries. Andy Pettitte is coming back, too, after ending his one-year retirement.

UK: Wildcats lived up to hype

The message clearly came through Kentucky attacked its first four NCAA tournament opponents like a swarm of bees; swat one and the rest are coming after you.

The Wildcats earned a return trip to the Big Easy by turning a highly hyped regional final against Baylor into a Waiting for them was in-state rival, Louisville in the national semifinals. The scrappy Cardinals made a game of it, thanks to some master manipulation by coach Rick Pitino, the former leader in Lexington who'd gone to the enemy, but Kentucky was just too deep, too talented. That set up a blue blood matchup with Kansas in Monday's championship game. Save for a slight stumble near the finish — Kansas closed to within five after trailing by 18 Wildcats rolled to the title everyone said was theirs to lose. "They're playing with pros," Kansas coach Bill Self. Davis rose up as the best of them all.

The 6-foot-10 freshman with the pterodactyl wingspan and Lexington's favorite eyebrows dominated in what may be his only season in college basketball. Shot-swatter, rim-rattler, jumpshooter, game-changer — Davis was the one's pick to be the No. 1 overall choice in the NBA draft when he comes out. He took over the title game without making a shot until the last 5 minutes, a 1-for-10 performance that was nearly a perfect 10 on the rest of the stat line: 16 rebounds, six blocked shots to tie a title game record, three steals, enough intimidation to get the Jayhawks to chuck shots at the backboard so the ball wouldn't get sent into the student

"He is an unbelievable factor on both ends," Self said.

And he may be gone. So could several other players in just a couple of weeks. With five potential first-round picks, the NBA may be too enticing for this team to stay together. That's OK with Calipari. He's hung his hat on chasing after the best players, regardless of whether they'll stick around or go to the NBA. Teach them as much as he can, win with them as much as he can, let them go when they're ready is Calipari's philosophy. It works. Calipari got to the title game in 2008 — a crushing loss to Self and Derrick Rose and Memphis. John Wall and the four other first-round draft picks reached the regional final in 2010. Brandon Knight led last year's team to the Final Four. Finally, this year, Cal's method was the Jayhawks — with future NBA star

fully validated in the form of a national "I don't think it's a good rule," Calipari said. "I hope we change it before this week's out and all these guys have consensus player of the year, everyto come back. But it is a rule. It's not my rule. It's a rule we have to deal with.' And one Calipari and the Wildcats ruled with, at least this year.

CINCINNATI (AP) Joey Votto got a big payday by staying in a small market, agreeing to a $251.5 million, 12-year deal with the Cincinnati Reds on Wednesday that is the longest guaranteed contract in major league history.

The agreement adds $225 million over 10 years to his previous contract. The deal includes a club option for 2024, when the 2010 National League MVP turns 41.

Quarterback Matt Hasselbeck and the Tennessee Titans will open their preseason schedule at the Seattle Seahawks during the week of Aug. 9-13.

Titans' 2012 preseason slate released by league

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -The Tennessee Titans will open their 2012 preseason schedule at the Seattle Seahawks.

The National Football League has announced its 2012 preseason schedule, which includes a primetime ESPN contest at LP Field between the Tennessee Titans and Arizona Cardinals on

The Titans open the preseason on the road against the Seahawks (weekend of Aug. 9-13). The following week they travel to Tampa Bay to face the Buccaneers (Aug. 16-20). After playing the Cardinals in Week 3, they conclude their preseason slate at home against the New Orleans Saints (Aug.

Quarterbacks Matt Hasselbeck and Jake Locker will have a home-coming of sorts in Seat-tle. Hasselbeck became the Seahawks' all-time leading passer during his career in the Emerald City. He led the club to an appearance in Super Bowl XL.

Locker, a second-year signal caller, is a native of Ferndale, Wash. Locker started 40 games at the University of Washington and led the Huskies to a bowl victory to conclude his storied collegiate career.

At Tampa Bay, Tennessee will face first-year Buccaneers head coach Greg Schiano. Two members of the Titans, wide receiver Kenny Britt and cornerback Jason Mc-Courty, played for Schiano at Rutgers University.

The Titans and Saints conclude the preseason together for the third consecutive year. The Titans won each of the first two tilts, including last year's 32-9 victory at the Superdome.

Final dates and times of the Seahawks, Buccaneers and Saints games will be announced over the next month.

The NFL is expected to release the regular season schedule later this month.

three holes remaining when he made three straight bogeys and lost in a playoff. Ken Venturi was on the verge of becoming the only amateur to win the Masters in 1956 when he blew a four-shot lead. Like McIlroy, he shot an 80.

McIlroy's blown lead is enough of a memory going into the Masters. Adding to the emphasis is a bad habit of 54-hole leaders failing to win this year on the PGA Tour.

Kyle Stanley had three-shot lead playing the final hole at Torrey Pines when he spun a wedge into the water and three-putted for a triple bogey, losing to Brandt Snedeker in a playoff. A week later, Spencer Levin had a six-shot lead in the Phoenix Open when his game imploded on the back nine. He shot 75 and Stanley — of all people – rallied from eight shots behind to beat him.

Charlie Wi lost a threeshot lead at Pebble Beach and Phil Mickelson won with a 64.

five players have gone on to win with at least a share of the third-round lead. With that kind of history, protecting a lead is not easy.

"Not even close to easy, as we've seen," Nick Faldo said.

He should know. Faldo is the only player with multiple Masters wins who has never had the lead going into the last day. Along with his win over Norman in 1996, he came from five shots down in 1989 and three shots behind in 1990, both times winning in a playoff.

"That's the beauty of the Masters," Faldo said. "We come back every year, all those stories are compounded, from victory and failure. That's what makes it so special. The players will be reminded of it. Anything more than three or four snots, and you're making assumptions. If you were to carry a decent lead into Sunday, you'd need a steeltrap mind to survive.'

That was never a problem for this year's favorite Tiger Woods. He was either leading or tied going into the final round in all four of his Masters wins.

"The beauty of having a lead is that you can make those mistakes and still win," Woods said. "But the only problem is if some guys make a run and they get some momentum going, and you're going the other way, you give them a big shot of energy. You've seen some of these guys pull off some pretty low rounds. It doesn't take much. If you get off to a poor start and the other guy gets off to a quick start, four or five shots can be made up in a # few holes.'

Academy played host to Caldwell County with the Blazers winning the boys' match 6-3 and the Lady Tigers edging the Lady Blazers 5-4 in the girls' match. Caldwell's Clint Joiner won a competitive No. 1 singles match over Vivek Shah 6-3, 6-4. It would be the only singles win for the Tigers.

UHA's Trey Lachance, Gordon Kaye, Blake Ed-Hendlev Traughber and Vir Patel won singles matches for the Blazers. Meanwhile, the girls' match came down to the doubles play as both teams won three singles matches.

However, Caldwell's Maggie Wetzel and and Annie Wetzel defeated UHA's Gabrielle Kaye and Katherine Settle in three sets 6-3, 4-6, 6-2. Then Maiko Ono and Larissa Patterson Gretchen Powell and Sally Smith in three sets 7-5, 1-6, 6-4 to claim the win. Blake Meade, Settle and Powell earned singles wins for the Lady Blazers. Erin Harper, Annie Wetzel and Patterson picked up singles wins for the Lady Tigers. o Éëì äë the offensive side to help Christian County in the backfield. Matlock, who said he wished he had another year with the Colonels, finished first on the team in carries (67), second in rushing yards (553) and tied for third in rushing touchdowns (6).

Matlock said he'll miss the tutelage of Lovelace and his wife, Mary, who mentored Matlock at North Drive Middle School.

"Coach Lovelace was my biggest critic but also my most important critic," Matlock said. "He was the linebacker coach and the head coach. He helped me. He yelled at me more than everybody else would. I appreciate that." As for Mary Lovelace Steve Lovelace said she'll likely be making the drive to Murray to keep a close eye on her "son." Matlock agreed. "Mrs. Lovelace and Coach Lovelace are basically my family," he said. "When I get in trouble, I get in trouble at home and I get in trouble with them." While Matlock became member of Lovelace family, Crawley had to figure out a way to get accepted into the Colonels' football family.

Crawley transferred to Christian County from Hopkins County Central last summer. He admitted the transition was harder than he imagined. "I came in here not knowing anybody," Craw-ley said. "That first week was kind of rough, trying to meet new people. But I caught on quick to their system down here. The kids, the players, they accepted me. They helped me out a lot.'

Crawley, whose grandfather was Steve Lovelace's football coach at Campbellsville University, was a quarterback at Hopkins Central. But Lovelace already had a proven signal caller at Christian County in Ryan Knight. Instead of having to decide where to play Crawley, Lovelace played the 6-foot-1, 167-pound athlete everywhere.

Last season, Crawley spent snaps at safety, quarterback, running back and wide receiver.

Crawley signed as a quarterbacks.

Boyfriend hesitates, worries about settling

DEAR AMY: I'm a 25-year-old male, and I've been in what I think of as a "comfortable" relationship for more than two years.

Although I know my girlfriend is loyal and would make a wonderful glaring traits, such as her lack of ambition and that she expects me to give her expensive gifts. Basically, she doesn't understand the value of a dollar and the hard work it takes to earn it, but she always wants to spend it, and I'm not sure that will ever change because she was spoiled by her parents.

While I can imagine myself with her forever, I feel as though I'm "settling" and I don't know if I'm "in love" with her. On top of this, I am often haunted by the thoughts of an old flame and friend of mine.

I know the whole lovey-dovey feelings often die out a bit after being with someone for an extended period of time, but I think of this other girl as a girl I've always loved (and yet I've never told her). I've had feelings for more than seven years for her. I know she shared these feelings for me at one

If I "settle" now because I'm comfortable, I'll never know about the possibility of the other relationship. On the other hand, I'm not sure I can give up what I've worked at for more than two years without a real definitive reason. Maybe if I somehow got over the other woman, I'd be able to focus more on my girlfriend, but I've thought these feelings would go away and they haven't. Can you help me? — The Settler DEAR SETTLER: I wonder how your loyal girlfriend would feel if she knew that you feel you are "settling" for her. You don't mention what about your girlfriend would make her a wonderful wife and mother, but I can guarantee that if you enter a marriage feeling you are settling it doesn't have much chance of succeeding. Make a decision about your longterm relationship. Don't hedge your bets; be a grown-up and make a choice.

You don't need a "definitive reason" to leave a relationship; in the end, it doesn't end up mattering much because there are "real reasons" and then there are the reasons you supply. They are often quite dif-

DEAR AMY: I've recently been demoted at work.

They've brought in someone younger to do a job that I used to do, and now I report to him.

Now the company is starting a project that I have experience lead-

My boss has asked me to sit in on planning meetings and lend my expertise. I will attend the meetings but am considering not participating much. After all, if they valued my expertise, they would have kept me at the higher position and I would be leading the project. I hate not being a team player, but they're not paying me for project leadership, so maybe I shouldn't

What do you think? — Demoted DEAR DEMOTED: It's time to look for another job.

While you are looking, it is important for you to be as on task, involved and professional as you can be. You should do your best to suck it up and demonstrate the leadership qualities you know you possess.

This is not only good for your professional prospects — it is better for your self-esteem than sitting on your talent along the sidelines. And selfesteem matters when you're on a job

DEAR AMY: "Unsure" was upset because there were two pregnant women at her office and a shower was being held for only one of them.

I have worked for more than 50 years and have seen this scenario many times. It is very divisive in an office setting. I suggest they hold a shower for the first-time mother and, at that same shower, acknowledge the pregnancy of the other mother having her fourth child.

An appropriate gift certificate and maybe some flowers would go a long way in soothing feelings and would bring cohesiveness to all of the workers involved. — Jane

DEAR JANE: I agree.

A little goes a long way with nuts in a healthy diet

BY ALISON LADMAN FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nuts often get a bad rap because of their high fat content. But the fat in most nuts is the healthy unsaturated variety.

It doesn't mean you should eat nuts with bandon, but it does mean vou should feel no guilt about working them into a healthy

The trick is moderation. And because nuts are so rich, moderation can be easy. All that rich flavor means it doesn't take much to feel satisfied. Whether you prefer to incorporate them in a dish, sprinkle them on a salad, or snack them by the handful, they are a great choice for healthy eating. Nuts generally have a deeper flavor when toasted. To toast raw nuts, place them on a dry baking sheet and roast for 10 to 12 minutes at 350 F. Keep a close eye on them because they go from toasted to burnt very auickly.

The freezer is the best place to store nuts (same goes for seeds). All their healthy oils put them at risk for going rancid. Place them in a zip-close plastic bag and squeeze out the air before freezing. Always give your nuts a sniff and a taste before putting them in your dish. If they have any sourness or bitterness, don't use them. We've chosen to showcase walnuts in this recipe for a composed salad made from roasted tomatoes (the roasting brings out their sweetness) and creamy, herbed ricotta cheese. For a great dinner, serve this alongside a piece of crusty multigrain bread with some greens and a grilled chicken breast.

4 large tomatoes, halved and cored 1/4 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon sugar

1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper

1 cup low-fat ricotta cheese

1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil 2 teaspoons chopped fresh thyme

2 teaspoons chopped fresh oregano 1/4 cup chopped toasted walnuts

Balsamic vinegar (optional) Heat the oven to 325 F. Place a wire rack over a rimmed baking sheet. Spray the rack with cooking spray. Arrange the tomatoes on the rack, cut sides up. Sprinkle the tomatoes with the salt, sugar and white pepper. Roast for 1 hour. Flip the tomatoes over and roast for another hour, or until the tomatoes are soft, wrinkly and have shrunken considerably in While the tomatoes are roasting, in a medium bowl stir together the ricotta, basil, thyme and oregano. Set aside to allow the flavors to meld. Serve the herbed ricotta alongside the roasted tomato halves. Sprinkle with toasted walnuts and drizzle lightly with bal-

Jesus willingly gave His life for us

DEAR REV. GRAHAM: Why didn't Jesus flee when He found out they were after Him and were planning to kill Him? I can't see what He gained by letting them arrest Him and put Him to death. — D.J.

DEAR D.J.: Jesus actually had avoided capture or MY death at the hands of His enemies on several occasions, but as He approached Jerusalem for the last time He knew His work was almost finished. "My appointed time is near," He said shortly before His arrest (Matthew 26:18).

Why did He not escape? The reason is because He knew God had sent Him into the world for one reason: To become the complete and final sacrifice for GRAHAM our sins. This could only be accomplished if He endured the judgment and death we all deserve for our sins and this is exactly what happened when

He went to the cross.

ANSWER

BILLY

He was without  $\sin$  — but on the cross all our sins were placed on Him, and He died in our place. If He hadn't done this we would have no hope of eternal life, because our sins would have kept us out of heaven. But He did go to the cross — and because of that, we can be saved. The Bible says, "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21).

During this Easter season, may we all pause and thank God that Jesus Christ did not refuse to go to the cross, but gave His life for us. And may we turn to Him in repentance and faith, and give our lives to Him. "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

HOW MANY DIAGNOSTICS DOES ONE CAR NEE

Peabody Award-winning National Public Radio stars Tom and Ray Magliozzi take the fear out of car repair and find the fun in engine failure each week in "Click and Clack Talk Cars." They took their nicknames from the clicketyclack sound made by aging autos.

Dear Tom and Ray:

The dashboard of our 2004 Honda lit up like a Christmas tree. We had the car towed to our local Honda dealer. When we were presented with the repair bill, we were dismayed to see that we had been charged $80 three times for "diagnostics." The service manager explained that they had to connect the car three different times to the diagnostic computer to read the OBD codes. This nasty experience has prompted a couple of questions: (1) Why would they have to connect the computer to the car multiple times? Can't they get all the error codes at once when they first download them? (2) This is a more general question, but why should the customer be charged for the tools the mechanic uses to accomplish his job? After all, don't mechanics need the OBD codes anyway in order to work on today's sophisticated cars? If the mechanic has to use his 5/8 socket wrench to do his job, why should the customer be charged extra for that? It seems to me the diagnostic machine is the same thing. --

RAY: It certainly seems like a questionable charge, doesn't it? But in fact, there are times when you need to scan a car more indicate a failure of some sort. So if the code says you have an evaporative emissions system failure, you wouldn't start by replacing the whole system; you'd start by replacing the one valve or hose that fails most commonly. RAY: Then you'd test-drive the car to see if the check-engine light comes on again.

TOM: The codes don't always tell you exactly what to replace; they just

If it stays off, you know you've fixed the problem. But if it comes on again, you have to scan the car again for your next clue. TOM: And whether you know it or not, you DO pay for the mechanic's equipment.

If a shop buys an expensive diagnostic machine --whether it's a scanner or a tire balancer -- it charges its customers something every time it's used, to pay for it over RAY: And all businesses charge for their equipment, whether it's separated out in your bill or embedded in the cost of the work. When you go to the hospital, you might pay $1,500 for a night in a hospital bed -- not because the bed is particularly comfortable, but because you're paying for the staff that wakes you up every halfhour and the equipment they stick in you once you're awake.

TOM: And on top of that, if they use a particularly expensive piece of equipment, like an MRI, you get charged for that as well. And it may well be worth it. It may save you several days in the hospital if they can quickly pinpoint your problem.

erized OBD scanner, you get a more accurate diagnosis more quickly, and you save the hours of labor that -- in the old days -- the mechanic would have spent testing each sensor and system

RAY: The same is true for onboard automotive diagnostics. With the comput-

TOM: So we think the dealer has a right to charge you three times if it had to scan your car three times. But we'd RAY: No. We'd charge you once for a scan, and then just add the labor time it took to do the follow-up scans. TOM: The scan tool is a very simple device that plugs in under the dashboard. So there's very little labor involved in hooking it up. It usually takes only a few minutes to plug it in and interpret the results. RAY: I'll bet if you talk to the service manager, he might be open to giving you a break on your bill. Suggest that you pay for half an hour of

The Empty Bowls Project: Auction – 11:30 a.m. – 1 p.m., Cadiz United Methodist Church, 482 Lakota Drive,

Methodist Church, 482 Lakota Drive, Cadiz. We invite you to join us in a wonderful project to provide funds for Helping Hands of Cadiz. Helping Hands has been providing for the most basic needs of the poor in this community for many years and is in need of our financial and moral support. The Empty Bowls Project Empty Bowls is an international project to fight hunger that began in Michigan in 1991. The basic idea for Empty Bowls is simple. Guests come for a luncheon meal of soup and bread and offer a suggested donation of five dollars for the meal. Members of the community agree to donate five dollars to decorate a ceramic bowl that will be displayed and sold in a silent auction at the luncheon. All profits from the luncheon and the sale of decorated bowls will benefit our own Helping Hands organization. Bowls to be auctioned for the event were decorated at the Janice Mason Art Museum on March 30-31. We hope you will join us in this important fundraiser for Helping Hands and for the benefit of our own community. To decorate a bowl for this worthy cause, email cadizbowls@yahoo.com.
